NORTHERN TRIBUNE.

SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 24, 1883.

The Aftermath Society.

Gave the people, at the Opera House, on Tuesday evening last, a brilliant entertainment. The whole affair gave pleasure, and in an artistic style, was a success. We wish we could say the same of it financially, for the crowd was small, but the weather, that insuperable tyrant to some, put in his shadow.

THE OVERTURE

was by M. H. Barbour, his own composing, and the music was of the very sweetest. Misses Summers and Vorce, Messrs. Fax and Rollo made themselves delightful in the quartette, The Echoing Horn. Of the vocal talent of Messrs. Fax and Lent little need be said, as it is well known and appreciated. Misses Summers and Vorce, in the duet, The Cousins, was given in a gossiping flavor. all its own, and so agreeable.

Misses Elliott and Durham, of Duncan City, in the famous duet of the Ladies of Seville, struck some of its best chords. The piece ever has been a favorite, and the ladies in selecting it showed their taste, and they showed their skill in giving form to its mazy strains:

Miss Marion Paddock, in the Mexican Nightingale, was never finer. The song is delicately tender, Italian in form. The verse sweet and winsome. The ear soon gives way to fancy, but in every note refined. The spirit of it is the love which the warbles of the bird teaches. Miss Paddock has no small gifts. Natural and graceful, her voice is equally so. She always surprises, and those surprises are delightful.

Prof. Barbour and Barnhardt made all the interludes, full of enjoyment by the best of music on the piano and violin.

The entertainment was excellent, without exceptions. Messrs. Fax, Lent, Frost, Rollo, and the ladies in the programme deserve the thanks of all who interest themselves in the love of taste and culture. But Mr. James J. Brown we must show how he is appreciated by giving him a rousing benefit. In the French patois he has no rival, the whole house is splitting its sides in laughter, but he has the self-possession to raise a storm, and calm as polished steel himself.

In Memoriam.

For the Northern Tribune:

The assembling together of so many people of different denominations and societies to pay the last tribute of respect to the memory of a disciple and faithful servant of Christ, Rev. J. H. Magoffin, was a grand homage to the Gospel of the Divine Teacher. The Master's spirit in the unity, truth, goodness and beauty in the services. All that could temper the heaviness of earthy grief seemed, to our sorrowing, sympathetic thoughts, to reign in the home visited by the Angel of death and eternal life. We feel assured, that there is one comfort, the only consolation for the loss of our beloved, to the widow and fatherless, to the church deprived of a pastor and to the community, that one so dear to them has gone.

"Where the Faded Flower shall Freshen,
Freshen never more to fade;
Where the shaded sky shall brighten,
Brighten never more to shade.

Where the morn shall wake in gladness,
And the noon the joy prolong;
Where the day light dies in fragrance,
'Mid the burst of holy song.

Where no bond is ever sundered,
Partings, claspings, sob and moan,
Midnight waking, twilight weeping,
Heavy noontide—all are done.

A SYMPATHIST.

Cheboygan Literary Club.

Those interested in the culture of our village pursuant to notice met at Mr. James J. Brown's office Thursday night. The Rev. Father DeSmit in the chair and Henry Saunders secretary, there was an informal discussion among the ladies and gentlemen present and three or four hours were passed with pleasure, mostly all present having something instructive to say. All that was said was suggestive of the subjects of the meeting and took a wide range. The committees consisted of Hon. Geo. W. Bell, President George Frost and Father DeSmit on constitution and by-laws; A. L. Fexer, Mrs. J. J. Brown, and Miss Katie McDonald on the most [suitable] place for meeting. On motion there was an adjournment to meet on Nov. 30th at Mr. Brown's office to hear reports of the committees on permanent organization.

Resolutions of Respect.

At a meeting of the vestry of St. James church of Cheboygan, Michigan, held November 24th, 1883, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted:

WHEREAS, it has pleased Divine Providence to remove from our midst the Rev. James H. Magoffin, our beloved pastor, the Rector of St. James church, who, by his Christian teachings and spiritual guidance has endeared himself not only to the hearts of his parishioners but as well to the entire community and

WHEREAS, in losing our pastor we are not only deprived of the instructions of a most efficient disciple of Christ, but have also lost the companionship of one whose sympathies were ever made manifest in our afflictions, and whose example at all times served to unite us in peace, harmony and good will toward one another, be it therefore

Resolved, That in the death of our pastor we have been deprived of one whose place we will be at a loss to supply, and that we now more fully realize the Christian influence he exerted over us, the tender kindness of his heart, his loving disposition and the wisdom of his counsels.

Resolved, That we tender to his bereaved family in their sad affliction, our heartfelt sympathies, and while we sincerely mourn with them in their sorrow, we cannot but rejoice that the light of his pure and blameless life went out so quietly, and that his spirit was summoned peacefully to the presence of his Maker.

Resolved, That in memory of the dead Rector, the church of St. James be draped in mourning for a period of thirty days.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the records of the church and that a copy of the same be published in the newspapers of the parish, and that an engrossed copy be given to the family of the deceased.

The Traverse Region.

Messrs H. R. Page & Co., well known publishers, of Chicago, contemplate the publication of a work, which, if the enterprise succeeds will be one of rare interest and value. They propose to publish in a large and elegant bound volume, a work entitled "The Traverse Region Historical and Picturesque." The work will be profusely embellished with illustrations, printed on fine heavy paper, gilt edge and bound in heavy embossed covers. It is expected that about a year will be necessary to bring out the work. Mr. Geo. B. Pratt arrived in Cheboygan this week and will have his headquarters here for the present. Men will be sent into various portions of the territory to present the project to leading citizens to see if sufficient encouragement is offered to warrant going on with the work. Messrs H. R. Page & Co. have published several local histories which in every instance have been very popular. We have seen notices of local newspapers, and also autograph letters all of which are strong endorsements of the works mentioned, and of the publishers. Such a work as is proposed would be specially valuable to Cheboygan County, and should be liberally encouraged.

Plenty and to spare.

On Thanksgiving evening, from six until twelve, the ladies of the Independent union will furnish supper at the council rooms for all who come. Everything will be first class. Tickets 50 cents.

The Great Ball.

On next Thursday night at the Opera House there will be a grand dance for the benefit of the Firemen, as noble an association as exists in the state. Let everybody go.

John F. Moloney has a new store on Duncan and Fourth streets. This is a convenience to the many people on the Duncan road. It also attests the enterprise of our friend John F. Give him a call. He has everything and as cheap as anybody.

Union Thanksgiving services at the Congregational church next Thursday at 10:30 a. m. Services will be conducted by Rev. T. B. Seith, pastor of the M. E. church, assisted by Rev. W. G. Clark pastor of the Baptist church, and Dr. Hartley of the Congregational church.

H. A. Wetmore, in his paper, Our Home Enterprise, has an item that rings the man and fine business qualities that places and keeps him first: "Quite a good day's work. H. A. Wetmore prepaid bills last Saturday, to the amount of $8,138.19, receiving discounts to the amount of $441.17.

Mrs. Weigand returned to our city on Thursday eve.

S. S. Eddy the accomplished manager of W. & A. McArthur's store has returned from a business trip.

The shooting match for turkeys fizzled Watts Humphrey, Justice Fife and Wm. Erratt were there ready for the fun but the turkeys were not in sight. It was the fowls Watts said he was after. Later—They are shooting now, Humphrey will give thanks he has a turkey.

We are pleased to learn that A. W. Merrill, the gentlemanly agent of the American Eagle Tobacco Co., of Detroit, spent Sunday with us at the Spencer house, whose goods are fast becoming the popular brands of our city. There is nothing like having superior goods and a first-class man to sell them.

The Episcopal church has iron in its blood and to the very heart is true. Mrs Magoffin will remain in the parsonage with her wants supplied for the present. The large interests of this growing, liberal church needs a Rector as soon as one can be secured, and we hope a man with as white a soul as that which moved the Rev. J. H. Magoffin, may replace him.

"Shoddyism."

For The Tribune:

What is meant by "Shoddyism," as applied to society people, and belongings? When people, who have been reared in poverty and obscurity, have suddenly by some turn of the wheel of fortune, become comparatively rich and independent, begin to put on airs, and talk about "style" in dress, and equipage, &c., &c.—all the time showing plainly, their origin and ignorance, sensible people, call them "shoddy,"—that is, trying to appear what they are not.

Why is it, people are ashamed of having learned lessons, in the school of adversity? If some, have been born and reared in the lap of luxury and idleness, and been kept at some popular school, and learned to thrum on the piano, and acquired the ease and confidence, constant attendance in "society," gives one,—are they thereby, superior, and to be admired and envied, by others, who have toiled faithfully, in the sphere allotted to them?

It is nice to have an easy manner, and to know just when to speak, and how much to say, and to be able to dress well, and to be considered "the ton," and all that. But of the two, if you cannot have both, isn't it nicer, to know how to be useful, and to be able to make and keep, your house and family comfortable, and to have the sense of independence, the consciousness of capacity, used and improved, gives one? Always, the man or woman, who has the power and the will, to act, and to accomplish, is the one, to be envied and respected. It is not poverty that makes one low, and inferior, but coarseness, boorishness and vulgarity.

One can be a lady, or gentleman, and not understand all the ifs and ands of fashionable etiquette. An unassuming and unassuming exterior, with an evident desire to please, and do ones duty, shows under all circumstances, the true lady and gentleman, not but there are certain customs, it is well to observe; but the idea, that those who follow or have learned some useful and remunerative employment, are not as high up, and not as worthy, as those, who have never done anything, but play the agreeable, is absurd, and inconsistent, with our republican principles.

To work, to labor, to do something, and to be self-sustaining, is wholly to your credit, and never, do you so forget the dignity of your calling, as to cast your eyes down, abashed, before the Shoddy Aristocracy!

All the mincing and mouthing about this and that "style," and the advantage of being raised "in the city," and knowing intimately, this or that, person, or custom, as though it made one superior, to "country born and bred," is a species of humbuggery, that merits, only our supreme contempt, and indifference.

Those who have originated better thoughts and modes;—who have invented easier and better ways of labor, and thus lightened the toil of thousands, are the real Kings and Queens, to whom we are willing to do homage. The mere fact, of the adventitious circumstances of wealth, and your "not being obliged to work," will never in our estimation entitle you, to any undue measure, of our reverence regard. TRULY,
Cheboygan, Nov. 18.
